The winter is harsh in Siberia, and that goes double if you live in a small village. One such settlement has survived up to this point by maintaining a unique and brutal tradition: whenever the land becomes too merciless, a girl is sent out into the cold, to be eaten alive by the Great Bear Spirit that proclaims itself the village's protector. In return for this unwholesome sacrifice, this entity grants his worshipers another tolerable year, and life goes on.

Anya is a bright young woman who has always disapproved of the tradition, but when her friend Katya is chosen to be the next sacrifice, she decides to take the matter in her own hands. Having taken the place of her friend, the girl sets out across the frozen landscape in search of the bear spirit, refusing to back down until she gets to the bottom of the whole thing.
